

ABSTRACT

A heat sink is disclosed for directing heat away from an electronic component dissipating heat. The heat sink includes a thermally conductive base formed of a variable density graphite foam article. This graphite foam heat sink having variable foam densities provides for higher cooling capacity than existing heat sinks.